The Winning Approach to Finance Transformation*Sponsored by*

In today's context, the number one roadblock to transformation is due to the fact that half of accounting's capacity is often trapped in transactional work and much of it compressed into month, quarter, or year end. On top of that, the roles of finance and accounting are changing, often times being asked to do more, so there is a need to move away from all the manual work in order to do all that is being asked.

We have a game plan for you to unlock capacity and determine which accounting processes are best for immediate automation. BlackLine's finance controls and automation platform is designed to streamline the most time-consuming activities. Whether an accountant analysing an exception or a controller reviewing a reconciliation, with BlackLine, you have time to complete it—with confidence. Join us at this webinar session and learn what the Winning Approach to Finance Transformation is all about.
